

NMSU Food Safety Lab to Receive $1.65 Million

Roswell, NM-On Monday, February 15th, Congressman Harry Teague will be joined by members of New Mexico State University administration to highlight targeted investments in research projects that are vital to southern New Mexico and the University.

Congressman Teague has worked to secure over $7 million to support various projects at NMSU ranging from agricultural research projects to community engagement programs like the New Mexico Science, Engineering, Mathematics, and Aerospace Academy. NMSU has also received funding from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act for new and ongoing projects on campus.

The Congressman will tour the food safety lab at the school of Agriculture. The lab received $1.65 million during the 2010 appropriations process for continued work on new rapid test methods for analyses of food pathogens for possible regulatory use.
